About

The Jade Dragon Snow Mountain Golf Club is located at the foot of the world southernmost glacier, the Jade Dragon Snow Mountain of Lijiang, in Yunnan province.

Designed by Neil Haworth, this extraordinary course is situated 3,100 metres above sea level, making it the highest in Asia and the second highest globally, after La Paz in Bolivia. Thanks to the effects of altitude, balls can travel up to 20% further than on normal courses, enabling Haworth to design – at 8,548 yards – the longest par 72 in the world, and one of the courses on every ambitious golfer's must-play list. The foremost 9 holes offer Scottish-style play, the rear 9 occupy a mountainous course, testing golfers' skill and versatility to the max. At the course's heart, the clubhouse features local crafts and artefacts worthy of its mythical paradise location, the legendary Shangri-La.

About

Lijiang Ancient Town Waterview Golf Club is located at the foot of Wenbi Mountain and is the closest golf course to UNESCO protected site Lijiang Ancient Town.

At the foot of Wenbi Mountain, Yulong, this is the closest golf course to the Unesco-protected Old Town of Lijiang. Winding along Wenhai Lake, with the majestic Jade Dragon Snow Mountain in the background, the course features truly exceptional natural scenery. The 18 holes are distributed throughout 12 hectares at an elevation of 2,300 metres. Mother Nature may have laid on the spectacular landscape, but Joe Obringer's design has masterfully added challenges and hazards on this 7,661-yard course.
